

DAWES TO MAKE STATEMENT ON FEDERAL BUDGET SYSTEM

Before a Conference of All Executive and Administrative Officials of the Government Today—Meeting Will Be the First of Its Kind in American History—May Establish a System of "Rewards and Punishments" For Those Who Submit the Estimates—Departments Must Keep Within Their Appropriations.

Washington, June 25.—The first step toward the making of a federal budget will be taken tomorrow at what is believed to be the first meeting of its kind in the history of the government. The executive and administrative officials of the government, Director Dawes of the treasury, had prepared today a statement which will be read at the meeting at which, it was understood, will set forth in detail the director's views of the machinery of the government and the success of a federal budget system. It was submitted for cabinet approval today. President Harding is expected to attend the meeting.

Associates of the director said he already "had begun rounding up" the loose ends preparatory to breaking the news to the public. He said he would not say the amount it carries at any given time is the maximum which can be spent. To the director has in mind a system of "rewards and punishments" for those who submit the estimates. The results of the estimates will be laid before the president for his action.

Mr. Dawes made it plain today that the heads of the budget were prepared to make a "very wide" margin for the matter of reorganization of the government and reclassification of the employees. He said he personally was ready to work hand-in-hand with all congressional agencies giving attention to the reorganization of the government. He was expected to use the results of such labors as a basis for further economies in the governmental machinery.

At the meeting of the budget Friday, all executive and administrative heads in the government will start a new chapter. The director deemed necessary to carry on the work of the government. He is the last, for it was said at the treasury Mr. Dawes will issue orders soon in the matter of the budget. He said he estimates constantly so that when a saving can be accomplished it will be done immediately. He was represented as saying that the government's expenses must be a continuing cycle from month to month and not from year to year.

Only accredited officials and members of the press will be admitted to the conference tomorrow, Mr. Dawes said. He said that he wanted all officials there who had anything to say about the government's machinery, but would have to depend upon them to spread his doctrine. He said that messenger in the government service.
